University Human Resources, UMD is pleased to partner with Prince George’s Community College (PGCC) to provide this adult literacy services for employees of the University of Maryland at College Park.

This includes delivery of GED® preparation classes at two levels, integrated computer literacy instruction focused on the skills needed for the GED® Test, and tutoring. The courses take place on-site at a specified University of Maryland location.

Workplace Initiatives in Learning and Development (WiLD)
1101 Chesapeake Building
University of Maryland
College Park, MD 20742
www.training.umd.edu

University Human Resources
Placement

The selection of participants is based on the results of placement tests; learners will be placed in the appropriate class for their level.

Courses

A GED®-level class for learners who are nearer to ready to take the GED® Test is being offered. A Pre-GED® level class is also being offered for learners who need additional basic skills review before they can advance to the GED®-level class.

The proposed model allows enrollment of students over the course of one (1) year, close monitoring of student progress, and an October 2014-August 2015 semester-based schedule that mirrors college enrollment. A pathway is created for qualified learners who begin at the lower Pre-GED® level to advance to a GED® level class in 2015.